Here is a short, visual, and highly scannable training guide designed to be printed out, laminated, or sent directly to your drivers' phones. It uses plain language so your team can easily build the habit.

Driver Guide: Using Your QR Code Badge

Your vehicle has a smart camera that tracks who is behind the wheel. To stop the camera from alerting you and to keep your drive logs accurate, you must scan your personalized QR Code Badge every single time you change trucks.

When Do I Scan?

- Every morning when you first hop into a truck.
- Every time you swap vehicles (e.g., getting out of your main rig and into a support truck).
- Any time another coworker drives the vehicle you were just using.

How to Scan Your Badge (3 Simple Steps)

1. Get in the Cab & Turn on the Ignition
 - Keep your seatbelt on and let the truck start up.
2. Hold Up Your QR Badge
 - Hold your badge roughly 1 to 2 feet away from the dashboard camera.
 - Make sure the QR code is facing directly into the inward-facing camera lens.
3. Listen for the Success Beep
 - Hold the card still for a brief second.
 - The camera will emit a clear beep or a green light flash, indicating that you are now officially logged into that truck.

Common Mistakes to Avoid

- * don't cover the code:* Keep your fingers on the edges of the card. If you cover a corner of the QR pattern, the camera cannot read it.
 - Watch the Glare: At times the laminated badges will increase the glare.
 - Do not share badges: Your QR code is tied directly to your legal name and driver log profile. Scanning a buddy's card will mess up both of your hourly logs.
